

Beauty Gizmo Review: Artemis Woman Double Curl Heated Eyelash Curler

by SOPHIA on July 10th, 2008

Over the past few months, my teacher over at makeup school made sure we curled lashes perfectly. Over the past few weeks, I've been trying and looking for that perfect technique to achieve such. The lashes are not just curled once - near the roots, they must also be curled mid-way and by the tip, which is quite tricky. But I swear, Artemis Woman Double Curl Heated Eyelash Curler just makes a makeup artist's life so darn easy now.

Double Curl curls lashes at the base of the eyelid creating a more wide-eyed effect. Then it makes a second curl at the lash tip, creating a bigger, bolder and truly dramatic eyelash result.

I was able to try this and all I could say is WOW. It's very very easy to use, you just have to turn it on, curl your lashes like you normally will, and the only difference is that there is a blue "second curler" that will curl near the tip of the lashes that will give us the wide-eyed effect. I swear, this is magazine-spread quality curled lashes. My lashes were curled to absolute perfection when I used this, and with it being a heated eyelash curler, it also helps for those who have trouble with their eyelashes staying curled all day (those with poker straight lashes like me).

The price is at $24.99 - not really cheap, but definitely definitely worth it. I'm looking at purchasing another unit to use for my clients, because this first unit is definitely MINE for personal use!

The Artemis Woman Double Curl Heated Eyelash Curler is available at Wal-Mart, Amazon and ArtemisWoman.com.
